Message from Group CEO

The process of compiling our first Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement (published in March 2021) improved our awareness and understanding of the complex issues relating to modern slavery, human trafficking, forced labour and human rights abuses. For many of us, the concept of modern slavery seemed far removed from the education sector and the Navitas purpose of transforming lives through education.

Over the past twelve months, as we have sought to identify the potential risks of modern slavery in our operations and supply chains, we have come to terms with the uncomfortable truth that no sector is immune to this problem.

At Navitas, we are taking our obligations in this area seriously. At every level of our organisation we are more aware of the risks and the actions we need to take to mitigate them. During FY20, as reported in our first Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement, we identified four primary risks in our operations. During FY21, we focused on building a strong governance and policy framework to hold ourselves and our suppliers to account. In FY22 we will build on these foundations, taking action in each of our identified areas to reduce risk within our organisation.

We will continue to raise awareness about modern slavery, invest in resources, and establish accountability throughout our own operations, our supply chain, our education agent community and the Navitas Education Trust to ensure that no person connected to Navitas is subject to behaviour or threats that may amount to modern slavery, human trafficking, forced labour or similar human rights abuses.

Scott Jones

Navitas Education Trust

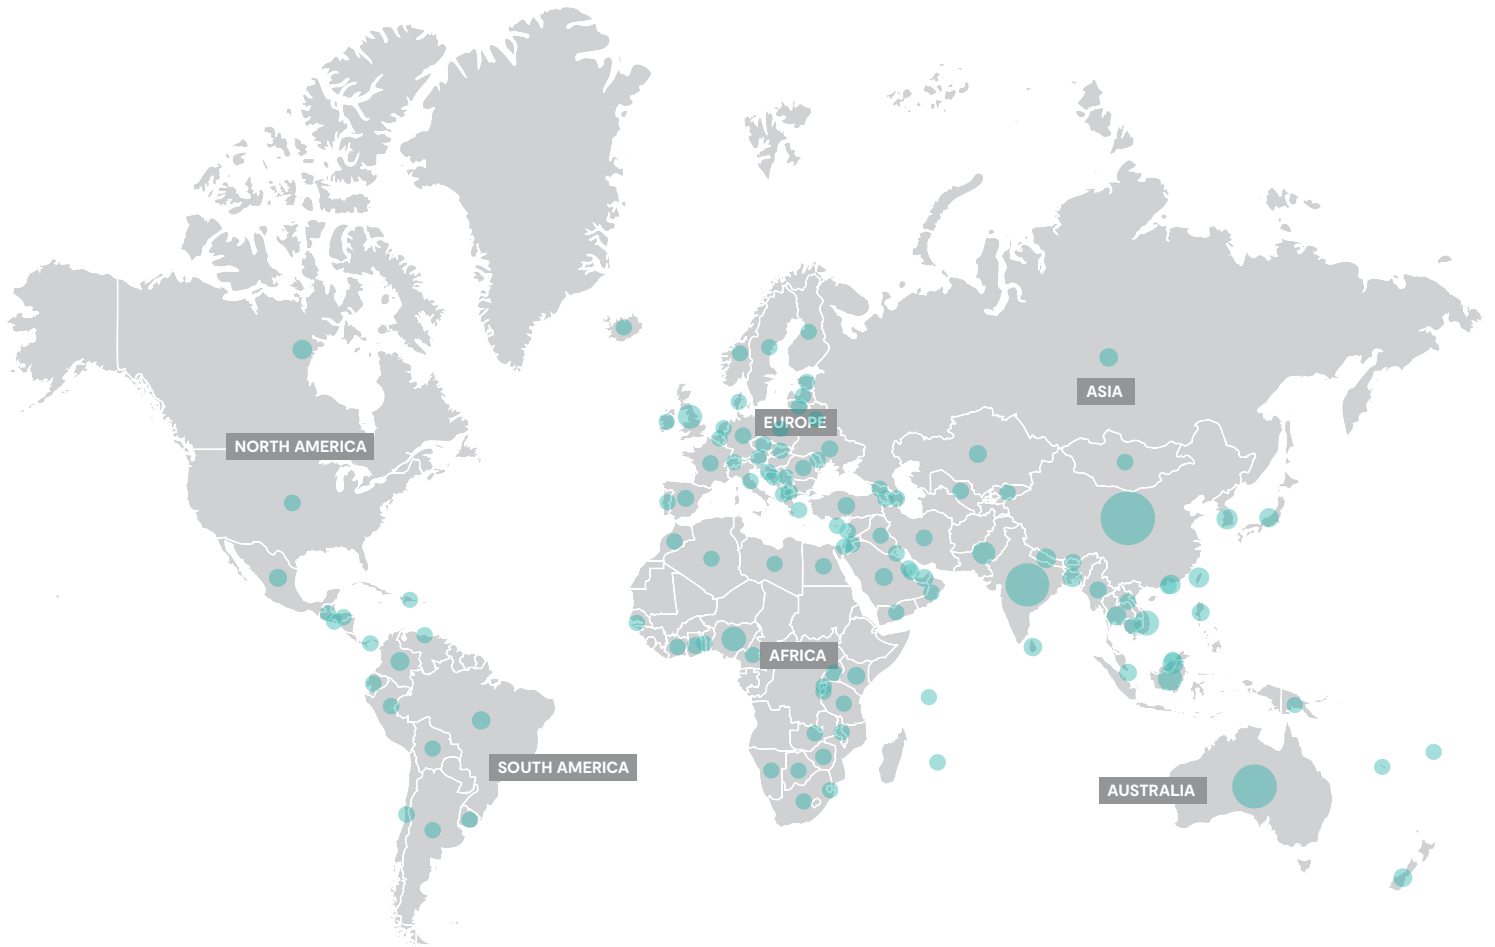

In addition to our commercial operations, the Navitas Education Trust (NET) was established in 2013 to support charitable organisations and activities with an education focus. Since 2014, the NET has made grants of almost $2.5million to help numerous not-for-profit organisations deliver positive educational outcomes around the world.

For more information about the Navitas Education Trust please refer to our NET FY21 Impact Report.

Our Supply Chain

Our most significant suppliers are the education agents (also referred to as education advisors) we partner with to recruit international students into our programs. Educational agents provide students with information about options for studying and living overseas and, in many cases, support them with their study and visa applications. We have 5,000 contracted agents in 122 countries around the world.

Navitas education agents by country

Other than expenditure on our educational agent commissions and incentive programs, analysis of our supply chain identified our procurement activity falls into one of six categories:

Procurement Category	Example of goods and services procured
 Real Estate	Construction and fit out of premises, rent, utilities, repairs and maintenance.
 Technology and Equipment	Software, telecommunication, IT support services and technology hardware (such as laptops, monitors and peripherals), audiovisual equipment, gym and fitness equipment, musical instruments.
 Brand, Marketing and Communications	Advertising, banners, signage and promotional merchandise such as hats, t-shirts, umbrellas.
 Workplace Services	Office equipment, stationery, furniture and onsite services such as cleaning, catering, waste management, security.
 Professional Services	Audit, accountancy, legal services, insurance, consultancy, research and analysis.
 Travel, Meetings and Events	Venues, air travel, hotels and ground transportation.

Our businesses source from a range of locations with the largest volume of spend sourced from Australia, United Kingdom, United States, Canada and Germany. In the financial year ending 30 June 2021, Navitas paid approximately AU$388m to its 7,000 tier 1⁴ suppliers.

Navitas suppliers by country

⁴ Tier 1 suppliers are suppliers that provide products or services directly to Navitas.

Our Modern Slavery Risks

The international education sector is considered to be a comparatively low risk sector in the context of modern slavery and human trafficking.

Our modern slavery risk assessment has considered the inherent risks of modern slavery based on the products and services we procure and the countries in which we operate and procure from. We have used the Global Slavery Index 2018⁵ to identify countries with higher prevalence of modern slavery and have considered industry risk factors such as, the use of unskilled, temporary or seasonal labour, short-term contracts, outsourced labour, foreign workers, the presence of opaque intermediaries, as well as whether there are known labour rights concerns relating to the industry.

Our risk assessment has focused on our own operations and our existing tier 1 suppliers.

We have identified four key risk areas relating to modern slavery that we continue to take action to address:

RISK AREA #1
Our education agents

RISK AREA #2
Our supply chain

RISK AREA #3
Our operations in higher-risk countries

RISK AREA #4
Navitas Education Trust

5 Mindaroo Foundation Walk Free Initiative (2018) Global Slavery Index 2018. Available from: www.globalslaveryindex.org

Our education agents

International education agents play an essential role in ensuring Navitas and other organizations continue to provide life-changing learning opportunities for students around the world. Around 80% of our international students use an agent to help them find the right course in the right city and navigate complex application and visa processes.

Research has identified that migrants who rely on third parties (such as migration agents or recruitment agents) are at higher risk of modern slavery, human trafficking and forced labour⁶. Evidence suggests trafficking is facilitated using student, visitor/tourist or working holiday visas⁷.

While Navitas seeks to only work with agents who adhere to high ethical standards, and implements due diligence processes to ensure this is the case, we recognise the risk that agents who recruit students for overseas education institutions may be directly or indirectly involved in modern slavery and human trafficking practices; for example, knowingly or unknowingly assisting a trafficker to obtain a student visa for a victim of trafficking, forced labour or other forms of indentured service.

Our supply chain

All products and services carry the risk of modern slavery practices in their supply chains. However, the risk of modern slavery varies depending on the product or service procured or the geography procured from.

Analysis of our supply chain has identified the following higher risk product or service categories that are relevant to our operations:

- Electronic equipment
- Cleaning services
- Branded promotional goods, including clothing
- Construction and fit out of new campuses

In terms of geographic modern slavery risks, Navitas sources from 55 countries and we work with 30 suppliers located in countries within the Global Slavery Index 2018 top 50 for prevalence of modern slavery.

ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT

Navitas relies on technology and equipment in its operations, including, laptops, mobile phones, printers and audiovisual equipment.

The systemic labour issues in the technology hardware industry are well documented. These include exploitative labour practices due to the low-skilled nature of the work and the low-cost model upon which the industry has been built.

We primarily use Dell technologies for our IT equipment. Dell is a founding member of the Responsible Business Alliance (RBA) and has adopted the RBA code of conduct to hold itself and its supply chain accountable.

However, review of our supply chain data suggests the use of a large number of other suppliers of electronic equipment, particularly audiovisual equipment used by our SAE campuses. Further work is needed to understand the measures taken by these suppliers to reduce the risk of modern slavery within the supply chain.

CLEANING SERVICES

The onsite cleaning services performed in our offices and campuses have been identified as presenting a moderate inherent risk of modern slavery practices.

The cleaning industry is widely known as having a heightened vulnerability to modern slavery practices due to the prevalence of migrant labour in the workforce, the low skilled nature of the work and the known controversies of underpayment and poor treatment of workers.

⁶ International Organisation for Migration and the Minderoo Foundation Walk Free Initiative (2019) Migrants and their vulnerability to human trafficking, modern slavery and forced labour

⁷ Coalition Against Trafficking in Women Australia (2019) CATWA Submission to the Draft General Recommendation on Trafficking of Women and Girls in the Context of Global Migration.

BRANDED PROMOTIONAL GOODS INCLUDING CLOTHING

We procure a variety of promotional products such as hats, pens, t-shirts and bags to be used at student recruitment events. These products are typically sourced from companies in our main operating countries (Australia, UK, US, Canada, Germany and the UAE).

These types of products are often made by low skilled workers in countries such as China, Malaysia and Vietnam, where there is evidence of labour rights issues such as excessive working hours, indentured labour and poor working conditions. The low-cost nature of these products and use of sub-contracting can increase the risk of modern slavery practices.

CONSTRUCTION AND FIT OUT OF NEW CAMPUSES

We are currently involved in, or planning for, the construction and fit out of new campuses in Australia, Sri Lanka, Germany and Singapore. The property and construction sector faces an elevated risk of modern slavery within its operations and supply chains due to the use of lower-skilled workers who are vulnerable to exploitative practices, and the need for raw materials that are often sourced from high risk geographies. Business models in the sector tend to be heavily based on outsourcing, which increases the complexity of operations and supply chains and decreases the visibility of labour risks and impacts.

Our operations in higher-risk countries

Navitas considers the risk of modern slavery practices in our direct workforce to be low. Factors considered when making this assessment are the nature of work in the education industry (a non-manufacturing environment), a low proportion of vulnerable workers typically in the workforce and the higher level of skill required for the work.

The risk of modern slavery varies by geography, depending on local laws, customs and practices. Navitas operates across 33 countries of which six⁸ are considered to have a higher prevalence of modern slavery, as measured by the Global Slavery Index 2018. We therefore consider there to be a higher risk that our staff or contractors in these countries may be subjected to modern slavery practices such as excessive working hours, unpaid work, underpayment, or forced labour.

Navitas Education Trust

The NET conducts due diligence on all charities it supports and only makes grants to Australian registered charities who are required to comply with the Australian Charities and Not-for Profits commission External Conduct standards. These standards require charities to comply with Australian modern slavery laws regardless of where they are operating.

Charities in receipt of NET funding often partner with local organisations to deliver projects on the ground. There is a risk these local organisations may not be operating to the same legal and ethical standards as those based in Australia. This increases the risk that grant recipients could be directly or indirectly contributing to modern slavery or human trafficking practices, particularly if local partners are based in countries where there is a higher prevalence and acceptance of modern slavery practices.

In FY21 the NET made grants totalling $299k AUD to organisations delivering educational projects in Nigeria, India, Cambodia, Nepal and Australia. Cambodia and Nigeria are both considered to have a high prevalence of modern slavery, as measured by the Global Slavery Index 2018.

⁸ Pakistan, Greece, Nigeria, Kenya, Malaysia and Turkey.

Our Response to Modern Slavery Risks

All entities owned and controlled by Navitas operate in the education sector, have similar supplier profiles and have been assessed as having the same risks of modern slavery in their supply chain. As a result, actions taken to address our identified modern slavery risks apply to all Navitas owned and controlled entities.

Governance and policy

The MGH Board and Navitas Executive Leadership are aware of our modern slavery and human trafficking risks, mitigating actions and reporting obligations, and will continue to support us as we make improvements and work to reduce risks from our operations.

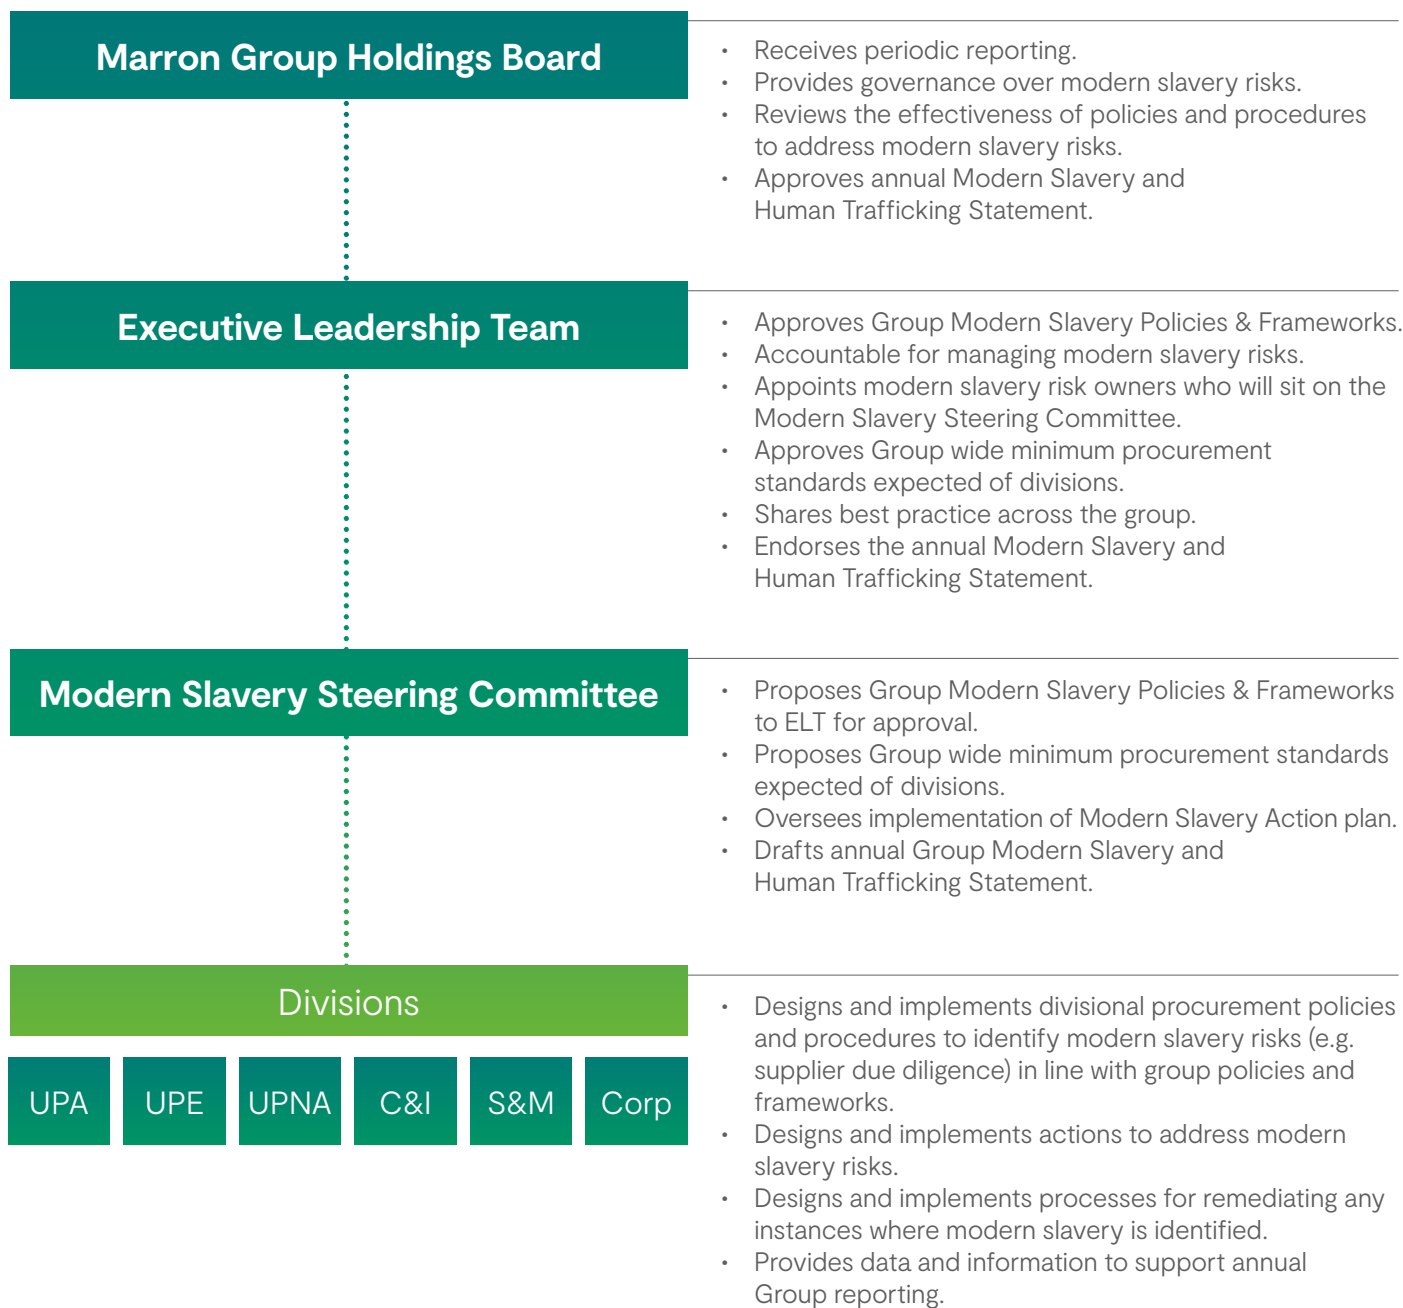

Our policy framework is designed to embody what we stand for as an organisation, providing guidance to help us make the right decisions and advice on what to do if we witness behaviour that does not reflect our values.

The table below outlines our policies that are relevant in the context of modern slavery.

Values in Action (Code of Conduct)	Outlines how we demonstrate the Navitas values through our behaviour. It symbolises what we stand for as an organisation and sets expectations for our employees and partners. It includes how to report non-compliant, illegal or unethical behaviour or actions via our Speak Up portal.
Whistleblowing Policy	Defines reportable conduct and provides details of how people can report such conduct including via our Speak Up portal (see above).
Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) Policy	Outlines our environmental, social, and corporate governance principles, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Supporting the protection of internationally proclaimed human rights, in particular to support initiatives to promote access to a quality education in disadvantaged communities and to not knowingly engage in business situations that could result in the Navitas Group causing, contributing to or being directly linked to human rights abuses. • Upholding freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining. • Promoting the elimination of all forms of forced and compulsory labour, the effective abolition of child labour, and the elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation. All employees are required to take these principles into account in their decision making.
Group Delegations of Authority	This policy has been updated to embed the requirement for all staff to take ESG principles into account when exercising delegated authority.
Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Policy	Sets out minimum standards expected of our divisions to address the risk of modern slavery and human trafficking in their operations or supply chains.
Group Procurement Policy	Outlines Navitas requirements for the procurement of goods and services. This includes: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • requirements that goods and services are sourced in a socially and ethically responsible manner. • expectations for due diligence and the minimum standards we expect our suppliers to meet. • Requirements for ongoing monitoring of suppliers and reporting of concerns.

In FY21 we established a governance framework to ensure the appropriate oversight of modern slavery and human trafficking risk management at a Group and Divisional level. Our policy framework was reviewed from a modern slavery perspective and we introduced a new Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Policy and Group Procurement Policy. Our ESG Policy was also updated to strengthen the focus on modern slavery and human trafficking.

Our Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Policy sets out our expectations of divisions to identify and manage the risk of modern slavery. To support this, we have established a centralized steering committee. The CEOs of each of our divisions were made ultimately responsible for managing modern slavery risks in their areas of operation and accountable to the Group CEO and the Board.

Action to mitigate identified risks

Our education agents

ACTION TAKEN

We have developed appropriate modern slavery clauses for inclusion within our agent agreements. These will be rolled out as part of planned updates to our agent agreements in FY22.

We have held awareness raising sessions with our Channel Partner Services team who are responsible for agent management. Investigation is currently underway on the best way to raise awareness of modern slavery with our agent network and build in consideration of modern slavery risk to our existing agent due diligence procedures.

LOOKING AHEAD

As a priority, Navitas will further mitigate the modern slavery risks associated with our use of education agents. We intend to:

1. Build in consideration of modern slavery and human trafficking risk to our agent due diligence processes.
2. Strengthen our agent monitoring systems to include consideration of modern slavery and human trafficking risk indicators, such as the non-enrolment of a student.
3. Ensure that information relating to agent behaviour is aggregated and shared globally.
4. Continue to improve awareness of modern slavery and human trafficking risks among our employees, particularly those that work with agents and students.
5. Improve agent awareness of modern slavery and human trafficking risks and how they may inadvertently contribute to modern slavery and human trafficking.
6. Provide students with information about modern slavery and human trafficking and where they can access information and support.

Our supply chain

ACTION TAKEN

We have introduced a Group procurement policy which sets out procurement principles including due diligence requirements (which include consideration of human rights, modern slavery, environmental and social factors), value for money considerations and supplier monitoring expectations applicable to all Navitas Group companies. The policy includes minimum standards expected of suppliers which includes prohibitions on the use of forced or bonded labour, child labour and other slavery and slavery-like practices.

Last year we identified issues with our supplier data which prevented detailed analysis of our supply chain. We have begun an exercise to ensure the accuracy our data. Our Procurement Policy also introduces requirements for all Navitas divisions to ensure their supplier master data is complete and accurate.

Modern slavery provisions have been incorporated into our higher value contracts, including those for building construction and fit out and the provision of services from higher risk countries.

LOOKING AHEAD

As a priority we are reviewing and updating our supplier data to enable a more detailed supply chain analysis and risk assessment to be undertaken. The analysis undertaken in FY21 has helped to identify priority sectors. Inquiries will be made with suppliers from these higher risk sectors to understand the level of awareness of modern slavery and the actions taken by suppliers to manage this risk.

Divisions are expected to integrate modern slavery provisions into standard supplier contracts. Such provisions are to set out Navitas' expectations that suppliers will adhere to our minimum standards, or be committed to working towards them. The right for Navitas to audit suppliers with respect to labour practices will also be included in supplier contracts.

We will provide training to relevant staff members with procurement responsibilities. This will encompass raising awareness of modern slavery and human trafficking risks and training staff on applicable policies and procedures.

RISK AREA #3

Our operations in higher-risk countries

ACTION TAKEN

Navitas is committed to treating all our people with respect, dignity, courtesy, honesty and fairness, and with the proper regard for the rights, safety and welfare of all. We strive to make decisions fairly, impartially and promptly, while observing all relevant information, legislation, policies and procedures.

As set out in Navitas Values in Action, we expect our staff to comply with all relevant laws and regulations in every country of operation at all times and to ensure written agreements formally document the organisation/employee relationship.

We have updated our ESG Policy to strengthen human rights requirements.

In FY21 we reviewed our employment practices in countries identified as a higher risk of modern slavery against our minimum standards. We identified opportunities for improvement in our contracting arrangements with staff in some jurisdictions which are being implemented in FY22.

LOOKING AHEAD

We will review our suite of HR policies and procedures to ensure appropriate consideration of human rights and modern slavery.

RISK AREA #4

Navitas Education Trust

We have included modern slavery clauses within our NET funding agreement and made inquiries with grant recipients regarding their compliance with relevant elements of our Minimum Standards.

In future years we will strengthen our due diligence criteria and requiring short-listed applicants to demonstrate the processes and controls they have in place to oversee the activities of any third-party organisations they partner with.

Assessing the effectiveness of our actions

During this reporting period our focus has been on establishing appropriate governance mechanisms, policies and frameworks for the management of modern slavery risk across our operations. We have also begun to review and cleanse our supplier data to allow better analysis and understanding of our supply chains.

At this stage we are unable to adequately assess the effectiveness of measures we have taken. However, we have established expectations for modern slavery risk management through our Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Policy as summarised in the table below. Progress against these expectations is reported to the MGH Board twice a year as part of the Navitas risk reporting process.

Criteria
Accountability for modern slavery issues, with an identified risk owner	A risk owner has been identified for addressing modern slavery issues in operations and supplier chains.
Policies	Policies and procedures have been implemented to manage the risk of modern slavery.
Supply chain mapping and risk assessment	Supply chains have been mapped and understood. The risk of modern slavery in operations and supply chains has been assessed.
On-boarding and contracting	Due diligence is performed on new suppliers to determine their risk level in relation to modern slavery. Contracts contain appropriate modern slavery clauses.
Audit and compliance program	Supplier performance is monitored to confirm ongoing compliance.
Training	Team members receive adequate training in relation to modern slavery and any supporting processes applicable to their role.
Complaints mechanism	An accessible and well-publicised reporting mechanism is in place for disclosure of modern slavery concerns. The reporting mechanism allows for confidential and anonymous reporting and provides protection from reprisal. There must be clear processes for investigating and reporting on the issues raised through the reporting mechanism.
Remediation	Processes are in place to support suppliers to remediate breaches of the minimum standards.
Stakeholder engagement	Approaches to stakeholder engagement are in place.
Review	The effectiveness of the modern slavery risk management measures must be monitored and annually reviewed.

Our focus for subsequent reporting periods will be to develop meaningful Key Performance Indicators (KPI's) to measure the effectiveness of the actions taken to identify and address modern slavery practices in our operations and supply chains.

In FY21 we received five reports from whistleblowers. Disclosures raised concerns about staff conduct and workplace health and safety. All reports capable of being addressed under the Whistleblower Policy were investigated and addressed in an appropriate manner. A summary of whistleblower reports is provided to the Board twice yearly with any significant matters being reported immediately.

Consultation

In preparing this Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement, Navitas has consulted with MGH Board members and the Navitas Executive Leadership Team (including each Divisional CEO who are also directors of one or more subsidiary companies owned or controlled by Navitas in their region). Input has also been sought from Navitas' Group Legal, Group Risk, Group HR, Group Finance functions and the NET Manager.

Approval

This Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement was approved by the Board of Directors of MGH on 27 October 2021.
